Paine's Celery Compound Set Him on the Rock of Health.

Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Headache, Sleeplessness and Anxiety.

The Great Spring Medicine Sweeps Away These Troubles.

In almost every Canadian home, one or more members suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, nervousness or sleeplessness. In the great majority of cases the doctors have failed to effect a permanent cure, and the common patent medicines of our times have only prolonged suffering and agony.

How different the result with those who have used Paine's Celery Compound! They have in every case been raised to a condition of perfect health, robustness and mental vigor. Thousands of renewed and re-created men and women in Canada, will forever remember that their lives were saved and made happy by Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Hugh J. Killey, of 42 Agnes street, St. Henry, Montreal, is one of the many who have given public testimony for the benefit of sufferers in Canada. Mr. Killey writes as follows: "I wish to publicly acknowledge the fact that I am indebted to your Paine's Celery Compound for health, strength and life. For over three years I was a terrible sufferer from indigestion, severe pains in the stomach and bowels. In addition to these serious troubles, I had no appetite or relish for food, and hardly knew what it was to have a full night's rest. This condition of sleeplessness and anxiety made me very nervous, and I was fast becoming unfit for my daily work. After a lot of medicine had failed, I was fortunately advised to use your Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am delighted to declare that I am as good as in the way for removal of such distressing troubles as I suffered from. I am daily gaining in strength, sleep well every night, and my appetite is good and healthy. I strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who need a reliable and honest medicine, and one that is sure to cure."

A WONDROUS POWER IN TEN CENTS.

A few days ago an Ontario druggist said: "The ladies are buying more Diamond Dyes just now than in any season. They come to me and buy one package as an experiment, and find the dye so easy to use that they now color most of their old clothing, and come out with new gowns, cloaks, jackets and suits for the whole family. In my experience of 30 years as a druggist, I must say that Diamond Dyes are the only package dyes that have lived and worked themselves up to the highest point of popularity."

Beware of imitation package dyes, they are frauds and deceivers, and when used cause a vast amount of trouble and disappointment. Ask for the Diamond; see that the name "Diamond" is on each package; refuse all others no matter how strongly you are urged to give them a trial.

"Shorter" Pastry and "Shorter" Bills.

We are talking about a "shortening" which will not cause indigestion. Those who "know a thing or two" about Cooking (Marion Harland among a host of others) are using

COTTOLINE

Instead of lard. None but the purest, healthiest and cleanest ingredients go to make up Cottoline. Lard isn't healthy, and is not always clean. Those who use Cottoline will be healthier and wealthier than those who use lard—Healthier because they will get "shorter" bread; wealthier because they will get "shorter" grocery bills—for Cottoline costs no more than lard and goes twice as far—is both as rich and as expensive.

A DOCTOR ARRESTED.

Dr. F. Yones, of Deshridge, was tried in the Renfrew police court Tuesday, April 23, with having found and kept a value containing about $1,500, lost by James McReary, a paymaster for J. R. Booth & Son, of Ottawa.

McReary lost the value between Renfrew and Shawville on the 10th of March, and is the owner of the trip net Dr. Yones. The latter claimed when a search was made that he had no knowledge of the missing value, but stated that he had met three Adams' farmers who had such a value in their buggy. His description of the lost article being very accurate it struck the owner that the Doctor must have seen it, and as the three farmers arose positively that they knew nothing of it Dr. Yones was arrested.

Mr. Craig conducted the prosecution and the prisoner not being represented by counsel endeavored to defend himself, protesting his innocence with tears in his eyes. Magistrate Yones after reviewing the evidence submitted decided to commit Dr. Yones for trial at the Pembroke assizes.

THE KENT CASE.

A DOCTOR FURNISHES AN OPINION ON THE MERITS OF THE CURE.

OTTAWA, April 29.—A conversation held a few days ago with a well known Ottawa physician revealed the fact that a larger percentage of the community than generally believed are suffering from indigestion symptoms. Bright's disease. He also stated that he had taken a considerable interest in the reported case of Mr. G. H. Kent, of this city, and that in view of the published interviews and the affidavit of Mr. Kent, he had no hesitation in ascribing that gentleman's recovery from a very serious condition to Hood's Kidney Pills. It is impossible to get over the fact that Mr. Kent had taken no other remedy.

GENTLEMEN,—I suffered everything but death from Indigestion for four years, and tried all sorts of medicine to no effect. At last I tried B. B. B., and before the second bottle was finished I was as sound and well as could be, and have been so ever since.

By turning the Crank.

Fitted with Reversible Steels and Extra Hillers.

Our Improved Iron Duke Corn Cultivator.

This Cultivator has proven a wonderful success. It has had a remarkable sale. We have placed to it an attachment for instantly narrowing or widening the wings by simply turning a crank. This is an improvement of a substantial nature, and will commend itself to purchasers. We have several styles of steels to choose from, but our No. 38, as shown in cut, appears to be the favorite. The Iron Duke is compact, light and strong, is a model of elegance, does the work of 10 men, and is in every way a superior tool. Buy no other. The mechanism for narrowing and widening instantly is ingenious and strong. The wings are held firmly in position. The longer you use this little tool the better you like it.

Monday, May 6th.
George Burich's New Sensation is now complete in our department. The 40 people who are to tour the coming season
have all arrived and are busy rehearsing so as to be perfect at the opening. Prof.
Snider and his troupe of dogs and wolves arrived at Napanee, Wednesday. Mr.
Burich says he will have a show equal to some of the largest that charge 50 cents admission, and promises the people of Deseronto a rare treat on Monday, May 6th.
Two shows will be given, at 2 and 8 o'clock.
Admission 25c & 15c. A free high wire

Rev. E. Roberts, of Belleville, ex-president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, gave a very interesting lecture in the Methodist church last Friday evening. "A plain talk to the people," was the subject which was handled with rare ability. It was a most practical talk which should have been heard by a wider audience. On motion of Principal Cole a very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the learned lecturer for his able effort. A unanimous invitation was extended to Mr. Roberts to repeat the lecture at a later date in the year. Rev. R.
Taylor presided upon the occasion.

Deseronto Cricket Club.
The following are the officers of the Deseronto Cricket Club for the current year:
F. S. Rathbun, honorary president; Dr. New-

P. Culhane, secretary-treasurer; I. Allan
Jr., captain; W. A. Macleod, Dr. Dulmage, Geo. Egar and E. F. Gaultin, executive committee; H. R. Bedford, umpire. The members of the club have entered upon the season filled with enthusiasm and a firm resolve to leave nothing undone to maintain the good reputation so well earned during the past two or three seasons.

Precautionary.
It is surprising the number of conflagrations which have occurred in Canada during the past year. A great many towns and villages have suffered severely, and the result is that municipal authorities are paying more attention to fire protection. Insurance companies are insisting upon better equipment
and organization in order that their own interests may be protected. Our own town council discussed the matter at its last meeting and are taking steps to increase the fire service in this town. One of the most obvious and pressing needs of Deseronto is a fire line within which no wooden building shall be erected in future. A by-law should be passed at the next meeting of council prescribing a district within which all buildings in future should be built of brick, stone or other substantial material.
All the territory south of Thomas street and bounded by Green and Fourth streets on the west and east limit, for example, be encircled in this district. A reduction in insurance would probably follow such an action.

Wedding Bells.
A pleasant event looked forward to for some time with much expectancy took place on Monday, April 29th, when Miss Catherine Marrigan, daughter of John Marrigan, of Deseronto, and Richard Baxter, late of Toronto, were united in holy wedlock. The ceremony was performed at St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, at eight o'clock in the morning, by Rev. J. T. Hogan. The handsome bride, a general favorite, wore a travelling dress of cadet grey crepon trimmed with jet, with a hat to match. She was attended by Miss Maggie Edwards who was similarly attired. James P. Marrigan, of Deseronto, performed the duties of best man. After the ceremony the wedding party drove to Marysville where they had lunch at the Marysville house and then the happy couple took the mixed train for Toronto, Niagara Falls, etc. They will make their home on Green street, Deseronto.
THE TRIBUNE unites with a host of friends
in extending congratulations.

There is a good deal in a name some times. Mr. Danbury, who has been singing tenor songs in Italy's company a little while under the name of Danbury, has now joined the Albi and Grey company to sing tenor parts and will be known as Danbury, which sounds very French indeed.

ABOUT WOMEN WOMEN.

Lady Randolph Churchill likes the very exceptional grandeur and much of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India, conferred upon her by the Queen.

The Queen of the Belgians is usually attended when on horseback by one of her favorite dogs, of which she has a dozen, with a preference—just as Queen Victoria has—for Spitz terriers.

Lady Florence Dixie has accepted the presidency of the British Ladies' Football Club. The members of the club do not play in fashion's dress, but in knickerbockers, blouses, caps and football boots.

Mrs. H. H. Kison of Boston has been selected to execute for the City of Providence a statue of Ezekiel Hopkins, first admiral of the Revolutionary Navy. Her husband is a sculptor of prominence and she has exhibited some highly creditable work at the Paris Salon.

"The late Lady C. Schreiber was a great patroness of London cabmen," says the London (Eng.) Quaker. They were invited to her many years since as the kind donor of the cabmen's shelter outside the Langham Hotel, of which shelter there are forty. One year she invited about 250 to a magnificent tea and entertainment. She was a warm supporter of the Cabriders' Benevolent Association.

Whenever the world comes to face with unselfish love it has to stop and think.

A NEW WOMAN'S BIBLE.

A REVISION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES BY WOMEN FOR WOMEN.

It is to determine whether they really declare that man is the master and that woman must obey him—First Report of Six Years' Work.

A Woman's Bible, translated by a joint committee of distinguished American and English women, is this morning being undertaken by the women's rights leaders.

The first five books of the Old Testament—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy—have already been carefully studied, and the position of woman in the Bible has been discussed with precision.

Six years ago this work began. It has for some time been suspected that a revision of certain portions of the Scriptures would show that woman had not been fairly dealt with by Biblical students.

The main question to be determined was whether there was any real basis in the Bible for the assertion that man was the master.

The work of the new committee of women has, they claim, already progressed far enough to show that the Scriptures do not proclaim the superiority of man. The members of the revision committee find on every hand abundant evidence of the absolute equality of the sexes.

And this discovery has raised the question as to what would be the result of this equality of sex. The revisionists paused in their work to debate this point and then proceeded to coin a new word—"Amphicentric."

"Amphicentric," then, will hereafter signify in the translations and reports of the committee, "absolute equality of man and woman."

The title page reads thus: THE WOMAN'S BIBLE. ALL THAT RELATES TO WOMAN IN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, WITH COMMENTARIES.

BY A COMMITTEE OF ENGLISH AND AMERICAN WOMEN.

It has been decided by the revisionists not to issue any literal translation of any portions of the Bible until the entire work is completed. The committee has, however, prepared an informal interpretation or paraphrasing of certain important passages, with comment.

It is interesting to know something of the women who have labored patiently and conscientiously as members of the Revision Committee. The valuable leader of this committee is Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, of New York, who is nearly eighty years of age. With Mrs. Stanton have been associated Miss Frances Willard and Lady Somers, Mrs. Mary Livermore, Rev. Olympia Brown, Rev. Phoebe Hanafor, Sarah A. Underwood, Frances Ellen Burr, Helen Gardner and Miss Frances Lord of London.

Perhaps the clearest narrative of the work and aims of the revisionists is best told in the words of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who said to me the other day:

"Yes, I can tell you whatever I can as to the method of work on the Woman's Bible and its inception. 'Where did the idea originate?' Years ago in my study I have always been a careful student of the Bible and I went into the man's work and found that the worst we had was the mistranslation of the Bible, which took away the self-respect of woman and made her a slave to man."

"As the years went by I saw clearly that this must be combated. The importance grew upon me. My co-workers could not be brought to see it in the same degree of importance as I did. We were busy trying to gain a footing. We temporized to win a following. This is the way it has been continually. Women are politic by nature. They prefer to temporize, and so that course was followed. But we knew that many mistranslations in the Bible did us injury. I felt that we were claiming equality in the church as in the state and that one must necessarily entail the other. I said that women must first be free in their position as well as in their position as citizens. We have never touched questions concerning women. With all the learned taught and commented upon it. To carry out the plan of revision a committee of English and American women was then formed. Among them were many famous names—Mrs. Mary Livermore, Rev. Olympia Brown, Rev. Phoebe Hanafor, and Sarah A. Underwood, who was editor of the Open Court and, with her husband, editor of the Index. John Bright's sister, who has since died, was another famous woman who was to have assisted. Frances Ellen Burr of the Hartford Times, and Helen Gardner were others.

"Miss Lord and I went through the Pentateuch, and next, while in London, assisted by my daughter, Mrs. Blanche, I continued with the same five books, in which are many of the most important passages connected with the equality of woman. The books of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy are ready for publication. They will appear probably at the rate of a chapter a week, and the chapters have been made ready. The plan of the revision committee is to publish the books in a series of small volumes, each containing one of the five books. The first volume, containing the Pentateuch, is now in the hands of the printer. The second volume, containing the Book of Joshua, is also in the hands of the printer. The third volume, containing the Book of Judges, is also in the hands of the printer. The fourth volume, containing the Book of Ruth, is also in the hands of the printer. The fifth volume, containing the Book of Samuel, is also in the hands of the printer. The sixth volume, containing the Book of Kings, is also in the hands of the printer. The seventh volume, containing the Book of Isaiah, is also in the hands of the printer. The eighth volume, containing the Book of Jeremiah, is also in the hands of the printer. The ninth volume, containing the Book of Lamentations, is also in the hands of the printer. The tenth volume, containing the Book of Ezekiel, is also in the hands of the printer. The eleventh volume, containing the Book of Daniel, is also in the hands of the printer. The twelfth volume, containing the Book of Hosea, is also in the hands of the printer. The thirteenth volume, containing the Book of Joel, is also in the hands of the printer. The fourteenth volume, containing the Book of Amos, is also in the hands of the printer. The fifteenth volume, containing the Book of Obadiah, is also in the hands of the printer. The sixteenth volume, containing the Book of Jonah, is also in the hands of the printer. The seventeenth volume, containing the Book of Micah, is also in the hands of the printer. The eighteenth volume, containing the Book of Nahum, is also in the hands of the printer. The nineteenth volume, containing the Book of Habakkuk, is also in the hands of the printer. SPRING'S HEADGEAR.

A SUBJECT WHICH INTERESTS WOMANKIND ALL OVER.

Straight Tips on Straw Hats—New Shapes in Straw—A Matter of Bonnet Strings—Trimings That Trim—and Those That Don't.

This time the announcement is found in the calendar of fashion. It is the time to look for spring hats. They are already on view in great numbers and are chiefly characterized by size and showiness. The chief exception to this is the sailor hats and straw caps, the latter of which are made of material to match the gown and are entirely correct. It is even said that some of the new hats are of an elaborate mesh cap to appear in gingham, lawn and duck to go with the same gown of the same materials. Then a woman will be able to cut her entire rig to the wash-tub hat and all.

The other exception to the rule, the sailor, is not so far from the law after all. It is always sizeable. It has caught the infection for highly wrought trimmings and comes out with its one-time plumes and feathers thoroughly discredited. Its brim is round, of the same width everywhere and curved up a little. The crown is rather low. This style of sailor is all-trimmed, the trimmings starting in front and extending to the sides. There is none at the back. A bow of crisp satin ribbon and a handsome trim piece in front and extending to the sides. There is none at the back. A bow of crisp satin ribbon and a handsome trim piece in front and extending to the sides. There is none at the back. A bow of crisp satin ribbon and a handsome trim piece in front and extending to the sides.

The specially correct material for such a hat for early spring—right away if you like—is a smooth felt with a wide edge of mixed rough straw about the brim and an insertion of straw in the crown. The favorite shade for the felt is rich brown, the straw being mixed brown yellow and red. The bows of ribbon will be brown, the wings will be scarlet and the front of the plume will be black. Such a hat is suitable for the street and will go charmingly with the perfectly plain tailor-made wisely chosen for first spring wear. In some cases the hat will be of the same material as the gown, the side of the brim is faced with satin ribbon of some bright shade, preferably scarlet.

The sort of glorified sailor that has been described is seen in the initial picture, but the other illustration is devoted to a looser kind. There is no reason for losing hope because the hat of the future must have pliancy and an air of freshness, for there are few startling changes in styles. The pliable cloth of former seasons will be made into a bonnet produced by a little stitch between the base of the crown and the beginning of the brim will be a becoming feature of spring hats. As a rule brims will be turned up at the back and a jaunty deviation from the perpendicular add style by giving a little tilt to the hat as it is worn. The trimmings in general is flat, with one uplifting plume, aigrette or upstanding loops, this embellishment to come wherever it is most becoming to the wearer, as a rule a little at the side and back.

A charming model that conforms to these general rules and is stylish without being unbecomingly conspicuous is of butter-color chip, the rosettes are a corn color and the bright green leaves and scarlet berries are exact copies of the little bunchberry plant. The trimmings are making the woods bright. The feathers are black. The hat ties on with narrow brown velvet strings that cross under the chin and fasten just under the ear, the end finishing in rosettes to match those on the hat. This will be one of the new features of the spring hat. At the back of the hat, close against the base of the turned-back brim, is a bunch of the polished green leaves and the scarlet berries. The hair of a girl who wears such a hat should be as clear and rich a brown as the velvet of the rosettes.

Time was when the shape of the hat itself was the important thing, and when, once selected with care and pride, it was then adorned by the trimming. But as time has changed and now the hat really hardly counts, save as a support to the trimming. If the shape of the hat seems modestly out of fashion, just look at the late last season and you will find a big stock of the patterns already in the hands of the public. These will be brought out again for a second season's wear, from which to encourage those who like them to invest for the first time now. This style of hat is especially becoming to women who are wearing their hair in a bun, and it is quite the little curl in the middle of the forehead. The hat has a tendency to make a girl look like a sailor, but many of the present fashions do that, there being some compensation in the fact that the wearer gains an air of exactness and tailor-made neatness.

PROFESSIONAL NURSES.

Many of Them Earn from Twenty One Dollars a Week Upwards.

Nursing as a profession is not a new field for women, yet on inquiry it has been found that the demand for trained nurses far exceeds the supply. This fact ought to be of interest to those who are asking: "What can a woman do to earn her own living?" Many of the professions have become so overcrowded that the chances of obtaining a position are very small unless the young woman has influence to work in her behalf. A good trained nurse is almost certain to be engaged all the time, and the possession of a diploma from any first-class training school is a guarantee that the graduate can earn a livelihood and in most cases a very handsome one.

This is a profession to which many of the noblest and most intellectual women of the past century have given their lives. Who has not heard of Florence Nightingale? Here is her recommendation of nursing: "I give one-quarter of a century's European experience when I say that the happiest people, the fondest of their occupation, the most thankful for their lives are in my opinion those engaged in sick nursing." Surely it is no small privilege where work is so well paid as in a nurse's capacity and one that is free from close competition.

It is a mistake to think that it is a waste of time and money to obtain an education before entering upon hospital work. The cultivation of the mind is of no less value to a trained nurse than to woman engaged in other pursuits, and a well-educated, even college-educated woman can do more, and gain more in consequence. Nursing pays better than almost any other work in which women are at the present time engaged, but let no young woman take it up solely on this account.

A HOSPITAL NURSE. account. It must in itself possess an attraction. The successful nurse must first love the labor. It is not easy, but very hard at first, when one is mastering the principles which lie at the basis of all good nursing. There ought to be a natural inclination to nursing and a strong inclination to help the sick combined at the start, but after the curious, steady work will count for more than any so-called genius. The nurse whose heart is not in her work will pass many a weary day from which a little forethought might have saved her. But if a girl thinks that she has a liking and taste for the work, then by all means let her go in and use every opportunity to fit herself for it. Twenty-one years ago it was said that no refined, educated woman could go through the training required to make her a trained nurse, that peculiar power of her hospitals of any importance is without its training school. Few people realize the value of skillful nursing. It is essential to the cure of every hospital, and there is no physician who would not be glad to have such care for all his patients.

A hospital-trained nurse is a luxury beyond the majority of people, and she earns anywhere from $11 a week and upward; this outside her board, lodging and washing of course.

The height of good nursing consists in what is done for the patient's comfort outside of the doctor's orders: the ready tact, the quickness, that peculiar power of soothing pain and soothing the nerves, just what to do at just the right time. The nurse must have good, sound health; be truthful, honest, in habits of neatness and punctuality, kind-hearted, and refined.—American Agriculturist.

Hints About Sleep. Never awaken a person who is ill even to give him medicine unless by definite instruction. It is bad to sleep in such a way that the light will strike the eyes before it is time to wake in the morning. It is unwise to go to bed late, and it is equally unwise to retire immediately after a heavy meal.

Avoid sleeping in an undergarment that has been worn during the day. If the change from warm undergarment to a cotton night dress produces a chilly sensation, then provide one of soft, light flannel. Such garments have the additional advantage of requiring less bed clothing.

Cheese Pudding. Mix a pint of fine bread crumbs with a small cupful of grated cheese and add a tablespoonful of butter and salt and mix well. Put on a fire and cook for two to four well-beaten eggs mixed with a large cupful of milk, beat lightly together, turn into a buttered dish and bake in a hot oven about forty minutes, or until the pudding is set and the surface brown and crackling. This is an excellent supper, or a very nice dinner dish when you have a light meat course.—Country Gentleman.

Scalloped Tomatoes. Take one quart can of tomatoes and season with one teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, a teaspoonful each of sugar and onion juice, one heaping tablespoonful of minced parsley and a tablespoonful of butter. Buttermilk is better than milk. Sprinkle with fine crumbs. Pour in the tomatoes, cover the top with fine bread crumbs and bits of butter. Bake in a hot oven about an hour and a half to two hours.—Boston Budget.

Eggs a l'italienne. Boil six eggs twenty minutes. Remove the shells and cut in dice. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add a pinch of salt, a pinch of pepper, a pinch of onion juice, a pinch of parsley, chopped, salt and pepper and the eggs. Boil up at once and serve.—Frasa and Fivola.

THE MODEL HOSTESS.

TACT AND CALMNESS HER TWO ESSENTIAL REQUISITES.

Amusement and Flurry on Her Part Not Only Bad Form, but Very Unconformable To Guests—The Beauty of Imperturbable Calm.

A woman may possess wealth untold, she may lack of heart and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be something in her career as a hostess that she will display annoyance or flurry, and the contagion spreading to her guests will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to be lost in undignified failure. A model hostess must, to all appearances, be made of stone, so far as disagreeable happenings are concerned. Even though a guest or careless waiter inadvertently breaks a bit of china which can never be replaced, she must smile on as though the loss of the article set would but emphasize the pleasure of the evening. Her well-bred calm inspires her guests with a feeling of confidence, and though to her heart she may be very dubious about certain important details of her dinner or dance, if she does not show her anxiety, everything will pass off to a happy conclusion.

A flurried hostess or nervous host, whose countenances but ill conceal the worry they feel, can do more toward making the guests uncomfortable than if the soup were served stone cold and the salad dressing were ruined by a too bountiful quantity of vinegar. An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these, and the success of any of your entertainments.—Philadelphia Times.

SOME NOVEL NAPERY. Banquets Which Are Spread Upon a Velvet Cloth of Gold.

An effective lunch cloth once recently was of the thickest, smoothest flannel damask of a pure gold color. It was dappled with a leafy design, also in the gold, the pattern being perceived only by the wearing of the fabric. No other color was permitted on the table, the service being done in white, while the flowers were of white. The whole effect was a table covered with priceless samite that Tennyson talks so much about on a sheet from the Field of Cloth of Gold.

Unless a hostess can indulge in such rare magnificence, however, a plain white lunch cloth is always in the best taste. Just now it is the fad to have these homesteaded and bordered with drawn-work, though not so elegantly, as anything pronounced, unless it be of the most elegant description, is out of place upon the table. A fairly good quality of damask, 24 yards long and with a net little drawn work border, is the best.

For those who prefer colored luncheon cloths there are extremely attractive ones in dull blue, old rose and yellow, and these have cheapness as well as durability to recommend them, for they cost but $12 or $14 in the two and a half yard and three yard lengths. The latest and most popular design in table linen of all sorts is the scroll pattern.—N.Y. World.

The French Woman's Way. Here lies one of the great secrets of the French woman's success in matters of dress. She studies her characteristics and peculiarities, and then chooses her gown and mantles accordingly. If a style that outlines your figure, then put it to one side and choose instead something less novel that will not draw your charms into a cloud of detracting from them. If a color that is the rage does not suit your complexion, or the color of your hair or eyes, discard it. In this way you will find a new way that will enhance your good points instead of clashing with your natural coloring. If a latest style of dressing the hair does not harmonize with the outline of your head don't have anything to do with it.

THE LATE MR. WORTH.

Measured by the Standards of Success He Reached a High Place.

Charles Frederick Worth, the famous man milliner and dressmaker, who died, having passed on to that far country where his services will not be in request, a victim of the dread influenza now raging so virulently in foreign capitals. By his death the gay city of Paris where he has reigned without a rival since Eugene's time will lose one of its most prominent fascinations for female tourists. Scarcely any woman of wealth or fashion has deemed her tour in foreign parts a complete success unless she brought back with her gown, hats or other articles of costume designed and executed in his studio. In some respects he resembled the late Ward McAllister. He was an artist, elegant, charming. As an artist, however, he was clearly superior to McAllister. The latter knew, none better, what men and women should wear, what designs were useful and what were perfect. Worth knew all this, and not only knew it, but he could conceive the designs and then execute them. To this extent he was an artist, and he was supreme in his realm. The woman who thought she knew what she wanted better than he knew, gave her gown made by him. There are other much dressmakers, but they have not reached his heights. It was only necessary to have the stamp of Worth upon one's gown in order to secure universal respect and envy. Probably in his long career he turned out many dresses that were no better than those designed and created by others, but this made no difference so long as they were produced by Worth. It was as much honor to don the perfection of a dress made by Worth as it would be to belittle

WORTH OF PARIS. a score by Beethoven or a picture by Raphael. The signature at once lifted it above criticism. In his line Worth had a long and brilliant career. Women of wealth and high rank, brides and widows, countesses and duchesses, queens and princesses, actresses and prime dames have thronged his studio and been arrayed in the gowns which might be unlike that of the ladies of the field, and yet was both fascinating and powerful in its influences, for how many actresses and singers have relied upon Worth's ravishing stage costumes for their success, and how many more who never saw Worth have clandestinely used his name to draw troops to the matinee and make a popular success. No man living, poet, prose writer, artist, singer or actor, has ever had such an influence upon the world of high society as this dead gown maker. He has been the adoration of those who could afford to patronize him, while those who could not have lived upon his name, and the praise of his profession did call for some artistic knowledge and some sense of the beautiful, his rise and his pinnacle where he sat lonely are not to be questioned. The success predicted. While it is somewhat of calamity to lose a man like Worth, who had done so small work in helping to beautify the world, there is no question that the world will be filled, as among his lieutenants there are those who by long experience are fitted to fill it. It is one of the compensations of death that no man is irreplaceable. Other geniuses will appear in the world of fashion, and some one else will dominate it as supremely as did Worth. Meanwhile it will be, in some sense at least, a relief that stage performers of the female sex can no longer assert their artistic excellence because their gowns were made by Worth.

Worth was always looked upon as a Frenchman, but in reality he was an Englishman, born in Lincolnshire, and his full name—which one never heard—was Charles Frederick Worth. In 1860, when he was forty-seven years old, he went to work in a London dry-goods store, and five or six years later acquired the services of a Paris silk-house. Here he began modelling cloaks. In 1868 he set up, in a small way, his famous establishment on the Rue de la Paix, and remained there until he died.

When he began he employed fifty hands; when he died 1,300 hands were at work in the establishment, and during each year from 6,000 to 7,000 gowns were made, and from 3,000 to 4,000 cloaks. Every reigning queen except Victoria in the civilized world bought his "gown" at one time or another, it is said. The Empress Eugenie was probably his best customer among royalty, and Americans paid him the most money.

Materials for Cushions. Suitable materials for the covers of pillows are legion. Pieces of last summer's silk will be best, and for a hearty cushion there is nothing better than the front of one of those tea-gown patterns which were used a few years ago, and which were clothed in French designs and colorings. As any Japanese cotton can be found a variety of printed cottons of all colors, or of a more luxuriously embroidered oriental scarfs, ranging from twenty-five cents a yard to any amount you may be willing to pay. A new material is a ribbon, a ribbon cotton goods, woven of threads of different shades of the same color. It is thirty-six inches wide, and but only five yards are needed for a large pillow. At several shops they are already made up in greens, dull pinks and blues or yellows.

Waterproof Walking Skirt. It is advisable that one should have one petticoat to be used exclusively for walking, and this may be had for a very small price from the bottom with a waterproof cloth. There will then be almost perfect protection for the feet and ankles and wet weather. It is the wearing of damp clothing about the feet that constitutes most of the discomfort of a rainy day expedition. In the waterproof lining does away with this.

HIGH UP INTO THE SKY.

AERONAUT HAZEN'S DARING VOYAGE

IN HIS STEEL AIRSHIP.

Dr. Hazen's Recent Trip—He Ascends
Over Five Miles and a Half, but Says
Hazen Will Do Much Better—Highest Altitude Yet Achieved is 11,370 Metres.Henry A. Hazen, the American aeronaut and scientist, proposes to make a record-breaking trip above the earth in his airship, which he has fitted with a motor and steering gear, that will permit of its being used as a boat, if necessary. The ascent will be made at some point out west.
Meteorological experts and all persons who are interested in ballooning will watch this novel experiment with lively hope.The Kaiser himself took a lively interest in the trip, because one of the results foreseen of the direction of the air currents. This has special military importance affecting, as it does, another problem agitating military strategists, viz.:
Will the dynamite and the destructive chemical-bearing airship ever be a reality of the war of the future?Hazen will substitute for the ordinary open basket a cabin furnished with pure oxygen, and with apparatus for producing either heat or cold in an emergency. It will have, in addition, arrangements for ventilating and heating the cabin, and for direct tube connections any amount of gas to replace the gas in the balloon.These novelties, therefore, will do away with the danger of the gas in the balloon, and have hitherto been encountered.Dr. A. Hazen, who in his old-fashioned balloon Phoenix (old-fashioned in the sense that it is not a dirigible) ascended to a height of 9,150 metres, or 5.5 miles, on Dec. 4 of last year, and who is about to attempt to do so again, is an extraordinary trip, points out that the chances of the Hazen party's gathering exact meteorological data will be very favorable."The American scientists," he said,
"expect to rise about five miles higher than the highest point ever reached by man, and what is more important, the construction of their airship will permit them to do so with all their mental and physical capacities in good working order, backed up by the finest and most advanced scientific instruments ever used."In his forthcoming report, Dr. Hazen will describe the improvements of his trip into the clouds. Height reached 8 miles. Discovery of abnormal cold temperature at this height. Want of insulation or of any means of heating
at the greatest height. (Hazen expected quite the reverse during his ascension in May, 1894.) The encountering of humidity and fog at a height of 5 miles,
and the discovery of a great quantity of vapors at a height of six miles and a quarter.When Hazen started there was no wind at all. He was very dry at the start, and seventeen minutes. He started at 10:28 o'clock, a.m. Hazen intends to cut his balloon at early daylight in order to avoid any storm time for a long,
eventful exploration.At the last moment the aeronaut decided not to take along an eighty-pound anchor, but to rely on the strength of his balloon. The balloon, which is of the lightest material, showed five degrees of contraction at the height of three and one-quarter miles, the temperature fell to eighteen degrees.When Hazen at the height of two and one-half miles handled one of the heavy cables, which he began to beat and cut violently. At 11:10 o'clock the height of three and three-quarters miles had been reached, the thermometer showed 25.5 degrees. At this point the balloon, being lightly, but not so violently, as before, his senses were slightly numbed. After 12 o'clock he began to take pure oxygen;
and at 12:30 o'clock he was at a height of
three and one-half miles and a quarter.
Considerably revived by the oxygen, Hazen began to throw out sack after sack. At 12:35 he had thrown five miles; the temperature was 20 degrees.While continuing artificial respiration he felt fully capable of performing the work before him. He caught himself napping, and began railing against his own forgetfulness. As he descended, this voice sounded loudly. Hazen could not hear the voice of the earth, which was completely hidden by clouds. He wore heavy furs, but trembled with the cold. He was at a height of three and one-half miles and a quarter.
He said, "When I was at the height of three and one-half miles and a quarter, I thought with horror of the two accomplishing so much, at the height of 8,000
metres, or five miles and a third; I remembered the fate of Glaisher, who, I thought, had been at a height of 35,000 feet, only to be found a second later; Glaisher's assistant thereupon arrested the further progress of the balloon, being fearful of taking his and his employer's lives."At the height of five and two-thirds miles the thermometer registered 49 degrees. It shot through the cirro-stratus clouds, which consisted of small snowflakes. At 12:45 o'clock my barometer registered 201 millimetres; that is, it showed that I was at an altitude of 5.5 miles. The quicksilver in the barometer was 20 degrees. (In the full glare of the sun) 23.8 degrees. Temperature, 47.9
degrees.The cold heavens above me then bore
a pale blue aspect, and at this height I felt better than I had been feeling during the last hour and a half. I suppose I could have gone higher, but I was not willing to jeopardize the chances of the expedition. When the Phoenix had descended to five miles and a quarter, I suddenly shot upward, but I managed to retain control of it quickly.Half an hour after reaching the highest point I was still at an altitude of 5.5 miles and a quarter miles; the cold was terrible, and I had hard work keeping my fingers from freezing. I was at a height of 5.5 miles, which records the variations in at-

the year 1862 when he rose 11,270 metres, school, "can any of you quote a verse from Scripture to prove that it is wrong for a man to have two wives?" He paused,

and after a moment or two a bright boy
raised his hand. "Well, Thomas," said the teacher, "what verse?" Thomas stood up and said: "No, no, no, no, no,
two masters." The question ended there.

HOW FAR AWAY ARE THE STARS?

The Nearest Star Thus Far Discovered is Twenty Trillions of Miles Away.Of the hundred million or more stars which are visible with astronomical instruments, the nearest to the earth
of only a very few have been measured with even an approximation to accuracy.
Most of the stars, it is thought, are so far away that the change in their apparent position caused by viewing them from opposite sides of the earth would be so small that it would be almost impossible to detect it.The nearest star thus far discovered is one of the first magnitude, not visible from the United States or Europe. It is the star called Alpha, in the constellation
of the Centaur, in the southern hemisphere of the heavens. The distance of this star is variously estimated at from twenty trillions of miles, or about two hundred and fifty thousand times as great as the distance of the sun from the earth.The next nearest star, as far as known,
is a little sixth-magnitude twinkler,
barely visible to the naked eye, in the constellation of Cygnus, popularly called the Northern Cross. The distance of this star, which is known to astronomers as 61 Cygni, is variously estimated at from forty to sixty trillion miles, or two or three times that of the bright star in the constellation of the Centaur.The brightness of the stars, as we see them, is, then, no measure of their comparative distance. A very bright star may be very close to the earth, while a very faint one, the difference in brilliance being due to the greater magnitude of the more distant star. Sirius, or the Dog Star, which is visible in the constellation of the winter sky, is more distant than the little star 61 Cygni, the latter being in fact a very much smaller sun
than ours, while Sirius is a far larger one.It thus appears that while the efforts to measure the distances of the stars have not been very successful, yet they have resulted in giving us a wonderful insight into the arrangement of the universe of stars in the heavens, and in showing that the stars are scattered through space
at various distances from one another and from the earth, and that the great number of stars which we call stars, or sun, are to a enormous extent; and that our own sun, great, glorious, and overpowering, as it really belongs to a quite inferior rank.But it is possible that before many years
our knowledge of the distances of the stars
will be more accurate. Spectroscopic investigation in the case of binary stars,
as these are called which circle in pairs
around their common centre of gravity,
has begun to help us in this direction.
Recently, for instance, Mr. G. W.
Collier, Jr., has calculated, from the results of such investigation, the mean distance of stars situated in the northern hemisphere of the heavens, and he finds it equal to the distance which light would travel in about one hundred and fifty years. The distance of the stars in the southern hemisphere is less than eight hundred and seventy trillion miles, or more than forty-three times as great as the distance of the nearest known star. An enormous distance, but when we consider that the average distance of the stars composing the visible universe is still greater,
we can see that the stars are scattered
even in their richest regions, present blank
and apparently empty spaces through which we seem to look out from the earth, and that the distances of the stars are not so great as we have hitherto imagined.The question, then, that lies before us
is, what is the distance of the stars?

A FLAT FAILURE.

THE MATRIMONIAL MISHAP OF A
SIOUX WARRIOR.He Weds a Modern Maiden and Then
Dies for Omission—His Fin De Siècle
Bride Would Not Chop Wood Nor Draw Water.A tragedy occurred near the mouth of Willow creek, S. D., recently which for humor and touching pathos has yet to be equalled in the history of this section of the country. Medicine Body, a Sioux warrior, becoming tired of life and disgusted with the poverty of the weaker sex, attempted suicide at the end of a rope, and his aged father brought the instrument of destruction to Fort Pierre, applying to the coroner to go out and
"dig" upon the body of his son, who he avowed, was "much heap dead-gulp a hoop." As there was not sufficient evidence that the man was dead, however, the coroner decided to go.On October 20 last, says a recent de-
patch, Paul Medicine Body and Mirsha Hond wedded their way happily over the hills and down through the canyons of Bad river to Fort Pierre. They were to be married in the usual manner, but sitting over their seats, each spreading it self over their swarthy features, they realized that the fruition of their hopes and dreams was a very far from a happy one. No more of the aimless life of a bachelor for Medicine Body. No more rude awakenings from long and blissful dreams of hunting around the fabulous wealth of the dead, but the necessity of building a fire and cooking breakfast. The cobwebs which had accumulated in the space of his wasted life were now to be swept away by the wind of a new life. As he curled beneath to be lost in the clear atmosphere of his beloved Dakota land. He believed that "as the cord unto the bow,
so is woman unto man." Thus sang the joyous Medicine Body, and as he fondly gazed upon scores of his dutiful wife patiently cutting the pile of wood he thought what a noble being was woman!
In adversity how comforting, and in prosperity how inspiring, the presence of a woman! He had dreamed of the future of the world, and now he was to be a husband. The solemn rites of holy matrimony were performed from the standpoint of a frontier justice of the peace.Medicine Body and his wife, with thumping hearts and minds full of anticipations of joys to come, bestowed their pious and earnest prayers to marry
them on the spot in consideration of a good dry ash wood. The bargain was struck, and there, while the barbaric accords of the Sioux were being played,

Our Improved Iron Duke Corn Cultivator.

This Cultivator has proven a wonderful success. It has had a remarkable sale. We have placed to it an attachment for instantly narrowing or widening the wings by simply turning a crank. This is an improvement of a substantial nature, and will command itself to purchasers. We have several styles of steel to choose from, but our No. 38, as shown in cut, appears to be the favorite. The Iron Duke is compact, light and strong, is a model of elegance, does the work of 10 men, and is in every way a superior tool. Buy no other. The mechanism for narrowing and widening instantly is ingenious and strong. The wings are held firmly in position. The longer you use this little tool the better you like it.

T. K. Henderson left last week for New York City where he has accepted a good position. Mr. Henderson was very popular in Deseronto and a great many friends wish him all success in the great metropolis.

The country is looking beautiful having already assumed a carpet of green. The trees are almost in full leaf. Vegetation is forging ahead at a great rate. Farmers are rejoicing, prospects being at present splendid.

Several large artists' urns manufactured at the Terra Cotta Works have been placed in Central Park and will be filled with flowers. The park is already a favorite resort for citizens.

Bro. J. W. London, G. V. P., of Belleville, was present at a meeting of United Empire Lodge, Sons of England, on Thursday night of last week, and gave an interesting address on the affairs of the Order.

ANNUAL MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Mechanics' Institute for the election of officers and directors will be held in the class-room of the Institute on Thursday evening, May 16th, inst., at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

In their efforts to steal the lilacs as they pass Mrs. Barclay's house, some of the vandals break whole limbs of the trees by sides doing other damage. An example will be made of some of these mischievous persons who are so regardless of the rights of other people.

James Fairbairn and Mrs. Robt. Geddie were summoned to Newburgh on Saturday by the illness of their father, Mr. Robert Fairbairn, who died on Sunday morning after an illness of only a week, heart failure having intervened. The funeral took place on Tuesday, the remains being removed to Pictou for interment.

A very pleasant party was held at the residence of Mr. George Huft, Dundas street, last Friday evening, in honor of Miss Huft's birthday anniversary. Between forty or fifty young people had been invited and it is needless to state that all enjoyed themselves immensely. The house had been very tastefully decorated with flowers for the occasion. After some hours spent in music and games, cake, coffee and ice-cream were served. The pleasure of the party was enhanced by the fact that F. C. Davey's birthday anniversary commenced when Miss Huft's closed, and Mr. Davey was present the party answered a double purpose.

Bayle's Players.

This company appeared at Naylor's Opera House on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and owing to other attractions of the week they were, we regret to say, greeted by a small but appreciative audience who spread the news that Deseronto's amusement loving contingent had missed a treat in face comedy, and as a result the second night went forth a good house.

The company throughout is an efficient one. The noticeable features of the programme were Miss May Bell in her series comic songs, who captivated the audience, especially "the boys," and Messrs. Butler and Perry in their eloge, songs and dance, funny sayings, etc. This company return on Monday next for three nights, and it is to be hoped that they will meet with the success of which they are deserving.

NAYLOR'S OPERA HOUSE.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 12, 14, 16. Bayle's players in new drama and specialties, at reduced prices, 10 & 20 cents. Don't fail to hear them. One of the cleverest companies who have ever appeared in town and worthy of patronage.

Band Concert.

The open air concert by the Citizens' Band drew an immense crowd last Friday evening. Prof. Denmark's musicians gave a fine programme which was greatly appreciated by all. The band is a credit to Deseronto. The week would be dull and insipid without these open air concerts. The band deserves hearty support.

Sanitary.

Citizens should not forget the notice given by the board of health with reference to cleaning their wells and premises. This must be done by the 15th or otherwise prosecutions will be sure to follow. Our local board must insist on this as the provincial board is imperative in its demands in this direction.

Commandable.

The merchants are taking steps to secure a proper observance of all public holidays during the coming season. All shops will close on the Queen's Birthday, Dominion Day, Labor Day, etc. In the past there has not been that unanimity of action in the matter which should characterize men of sense and public spirit. A meeting should be called and resolutions passed to secure uniform action.

Roundup.

Complaints have been lodged at this office concerning the conduct of four young men who went up to the west end of town last Friday evening for the purpose of picking a quarrel and performing other acts of roudyism. They struck Thos. Green, an inoffensive person, cutting his face. These young fellows are well known offenders. Out of mere respect to their parents they have been leniently dealt with, but it is thought that such leniency has been a great mistake judging by results.

Expressions of Sympathy.

A remitting the half yearly grant of $25 sterling for the Mission School of the Reserve to the Rev. G. A. Anderson, M. A., W. M. Venable, Esq., the clerk of the New England Society, in his letter of 25th April last says: "At the last meeting of the Company I was instructed to convey to you an assurance of the Company's most sincere sympathy with both you and Mrs. Anderson in the very sad bereavement which you have lately sustained, and their deepest regret at hearing of your own severe illness from which they trust you have now recovered."

The Weather.

The oldest inhabitant confesses that the weather of the past week is something that he never before experienced at this season of the year. The temperatures have been of a tropical consistency, the mercury bubbling very frequently in the eighties. Friday, 3rd, it was 77.5 in the shade, Saturday 75.8, Sunday 64.6, Monday 55.5, Tuesday 80.2, Wednesday 79, Thursday 84.2. There were few growing showers on Saturday and on Tuesday night. In fact the weather is more like June or July than the first week of May.

Flower Service.

The Methodist Sunday school has selected the 19th June as the date for holding their Flower Service. Committees will decorate the church and prepare a suitable and interesting programme. Rev. D. O. Crossley has promised to be present and give an address; he will also sing one or more of his original selections. A collection will be taken which it is hoped will amount to $20, the sum required to meet the annual payment on subscription to the church building fund. Parents of scholars and the public are cordially invited and requested to encourage the school by attending this service. School will open at 2:30 o'clock p. m.

Death of Captain Dobbin.

Thos. Dobbin, one of the oldest and most esteemed citizens of Oswego, died on Saturday, aged 50 years. He was born in Glasgow, and in 1821 came to America settling for a year in Canada. In 1835 he was entered upon work in Sylvester Doolittle's shipyard in Oswego. He was engaged in the tug and vessel business for a number of years and built several large and vessels. For many years, during the time that A. S. Page & Co. carried on a lumbering business at Ross, more and Baker's Island, he commanded the tug Oswego and several large barges, and also the Alston Steamer, which regularly plied between Page's mills and Oswego, frequently carrying two million feet of lumber in a tow. In the old shipbuilding days at Deseronto much work was done to his fleet of vessels. He was a prominent and successful lake captain and by his death another old landmark is removed. He was an outspoken, upright man and many old friends in this district will hear of his death with great regret.

For years Rochefort has been rich. When he started the Intendant, a journal devoted to the proletariat, he was living in a sumptuously furnished house and spent more on his breakfast than a workman's whole expense for a week. Luck comes to him when it is needed. It was luck which prompted the banker, Edmond Adam, to send the 25,000 francs which opened the way for Rochefort to the post office of the Le Petit Nourm. It was luck which prevented his recapture and ignominious return to Australia. And now luck has brought him safely again. He has been arrested so often that he has acquired a reputation for inviolability, a political necessity, at this time he feels the triumph keenly. And he feels that there is still room for him in the militant politics of the third republic.

This youngster has the further accomplishment of being able to sign his name as well with eyes shut as when they are open. He also answers from interstices which hardly anything appears to him as not being there it really is. Experts say that perversion of the color sense comes from optic neuritis, a brain disease which none of these people have with its victim's idea of the correct color of things appearing as jumbled in, as it were, though some say it does not allow the sufferer the right beholding even a mixture of colors, but tones everything down to one color.

This phase is called chromatopsia, and is usually associated with eyes appearing red, yellow or green. Another rare proof of this class of disease is to prevent persons sight so that a book can only be read when upside down.

 it is not the place of apparitions to be

Miss Jane Bruce gave a recitation and there was a well rendered dialogue by Miss Green and another by Mr. and Mrs. Zircus.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED. Messrs. Douglas Bro. & Co.:

Gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barbara's Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street.

I thought I would give it a trial. I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might also say that I only bathed my face once and that I could have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Liniment too highly for the value it has been to me. The Liniment is to be true and correct.

I remain yours,

C. A. MURPHY, Painter.

Tamworth, 10th May, 1895.

Meanwhile Dr. Yones will be set at liberty if he can find two sureties of $500 each.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have now, from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be the most complete blood purifier." J. M. CROOK, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is the Only True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye today.

Hood's Pills say to buy, easy to take, easy in effect.

IRON DUKE CORN CULTIVATOR.

Instantly Narrowed or Widened
By turning the Crank.

Fitted with Reversible Steels and Extra Hillers.

Our Improved Iron Duke Corn Cultivator.

This Cultivator has proven a wonderful success. It has had a remarkable sale. We have placed to it an attachment for instantly narrowing or widening the wings by simply turning a crank. This is an improvement of a substantial nature, and will commend itself to purchasers. We have several styles of steels to choose from, but our No. 38, as shown in cut, appears to be the favorite. The Iron Duke is compact, light and strong, is a model of elegance, does the work of 10 men, and is in every way a superior tool. Buy no other. The mechanism for narrowing and widening instantly is ingenious and strong. The wings are held firmly in position. The longer you use this little tool the better you like it.

WHITE ASIATIC LILIES

A Species Which Bears a Number of Blooms

One who will glance over the list to standard lilacs now in cultivation in this country will be struck with the fact that very few are of the type of large, large proportion having been brought from Europe and Asia,—in fact almost all that come under the head of cultivated lilacs, the few purely American species being those which have had little thought of, although they have been the victims of cruel treatment. Among the lilacs to which we are indebted to Asia is a group distinguished by its white flowers. Lilium candidum (shown in the accompanying illustration) is a species and long in flower. These flowers are worthy of general cultivation, even, than they may have, because of their beauty for decorative purposes, great masses of such magnificent white bloom being especially work, large or small, and are cut in every conceivable form: leaf or pear shape, diamond, star, crescent, oval, square, oblong, with serrated edges, in the multitude of simple flowers like the forget-nots; more than that, if a sufficient quantity be ordered of the manufacturer he will open to supply any shape to order in the given colors. The cost of this work is considerably more. Our illustrations being necessarily limited in number give but a faint idea of the uses to which a single piece can be put. An artist will make it suitable for jewel-boxes, photographs, frames, lamp shades, candle shades, mirror fans, hand screens, card-trays, etc.

The material used as a foundation generally of silk or satin, sometimes gauze. It must be stretched on a frame, and the pattern of the design drawn. Several shades of sewing silk to match the spangles will be needed, also a piece of wax. This will aid materially in making the work easy, especially as the pattern is small. The sewing must be split. Holes are pierced in spangles for sewing them down, and sharp. Sometimes rough edges are hard on the silk.

Model No. 1 is a design for a jewel-box. The dimensions correspond to those of an ordinary cigar-box when enlarged to the original size, but the pattern can be adapted to larger or smaller measurements, according to the size of the space occupied by the monogram can be filled with a delicate painting if preferred.

mediate surroundings. The specimen before me is on blue satin of the palest tint and partaking of the slight greenish tinge seen in a clear sunset sky.

The sponges on the right to represent foliage should be in two shades of light and green. The lighter shade for the small on the left. The unembroidered stems match the leaves in tone. The monogram is worked in gold thread; the jewels that embellish and also those that hold together the tops of the angles, represent opals. The box is padded inside throughout, including the lid, and is lined with very pale gold satin, pink to match the flowers. The inside of the lid is lined with blue. This is a new design. It gives us a beautiful, novel photographic frame. This can be made up as it is, but is often protected by being, in its turn, regularly framed under glass with a gilt moulding. This design is worked on a dull buff color, not most a fawn shade. The creases between the angles, the corners and the central oval are of gold, also the corners within the scroll beneath the top of the creases. The central oval is threaded, laid in solidly; the bottom of the trailing spray is also in gold thread; the leaf angles are brick red.

The hermit small pearl beads. The dragon flies' wings are spangles of peacock green. The beads within the crescent form the jewels on the rider's forehead. The crescent jewels on the outer oval. These jewels are milky like an opal, but of a richer amber in color. The jewels surmounting the feathery sprays outside the heart are also partially opaque, but of a turquoise blue. The crescent jewels are translucent, shading in parts to brown and red. No. 8 represents a candle shade on silk thin enough to be transparent against the light. A little pointed Watteau group in handspike fills the centre. The setting is a diamond of brilliant spangles, with a small gold bead between the spangles. It is of cream white, with forget-me-not blue spangles. The design, though simple

Taking Things for Granted.

There are few things in the world which wound us so deeply as the fact that we are ignored by our fellow-beings as we are passed by or looked over. Dony if as much as we may, every creature craves notice. We all have pretensions, and yet it is in making none that we realize our insignificance. It is shown them. For the most part, we take altogether too many things for granted, as if they were world for granted, as if they were dead, as if it were only rights that we should come to. We are too ready to support, either mentally or socially, as we feel that certain actions are due us and that they are ours by right. More often, I think, however, the

is born of thoughtlessness. The thoughtless man discards the courtesy as an idle thing, extending a courtesy as if he thought which inspired it, trouble which it cost, is taken for granted. He is not aware of the only right that one should do. Of this in so many things—particularly the small things of life. I have seen a young man do that which is only called for where some special action is shown, where the courtesy of magnanimity is required. He is so much accustomed to do that he forgets to delay everything on a scale, or whatever it is, the fact that he has always done it. He regards the little courtesies of life as duties. The most subtle thought is shown in the smallest thing. The greatest pleasure in life comes from the smaller thing than the larger. Again and again have we seen this coming from the people of a man shows the small thing to a woman and it goes unnoted. A young man shows a courtesy to a woman and she is not aware of it. It is extended, and remains unacknowledged. Letters of congratulation are written, and go unacknowledged. For the things that we are in the true spirit of gratitude. We think that granted, absolutely forgotten. It is a thing that we do not want; that, however, comes to us in a way of attention, be it over so small an attention and we are particularly much more of it. One hears a little more of complaint among young men that they are not getting any courtesy together too much as their due. One should get over this habit of thinking of things for granted. It is a thing that is quickly stifled. It is a thing of gallantry in our young men. Indifferent reception of their courtesy is a thing that is a great deal of it. — Ladies' Home Journal.

The home is baby's school, and so to the self-educated parent a child is the greatest self-educator, for he feels that his child must be whatever he would have himself to be. The tenderest sympathy is his instructor and critic.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.

Messrs. Douglas Bros. & Co.

Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barbara's itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I went to a very prominent doctor of this town and he told me it would take a few months before I could get rid of it. On a Sunday a neighbor came in to see me with about half an ounce of your Douglas's Eczema Lintment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial; I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might also say that I only bathed my face once and that I consider I have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Lintment too highly for the value it has been to me. This I declare to be true and correct. I remain yours,

G. A. McVICKEN, Painter.

ST MARK'S CHURCH NOTES.

The subject of the sermon last Sunday morning was "The Marks of Jesus," Gal. IV, 17. In the evening, "The Omnipotence of God" was treated of, Text, Psalm 139, 7-12.

Next Sunday (the 5th after Easter) is also called Rogation Sunday because it is followed by the Rogation Days (the three days before Ascension day) when intercessions were made for the crops or the Divine blessing on the fruits of the earth. The Rogation days were originally appointed about 400 by Mamertus, Bishop of Vienne, who on occasion of certain calamities that overwhelmed his Diocese, instituted special fasts to be annually used on these days.

Thanks are due to Master Allen Kestor for a supply of beautiful wild flowers for the Church and also to other thoughtful friends for contributions of garden flowers for the same purpose.

The Women's Auxiliary assisted by the Junior Mission Band, on Ascension Day, a large sale containing many useful articles of clothing, etc., to a mission centre in Manitoba. The Ascension-day appeal for 1895 has been successful. It is hoped that the sale is appointed to be read next Sunday while the offerings of the people on the following Sunday, 20th inst., are being offered for the work of Domestic Missions in Algoma and the N. W.

Next Thursday, the 23rd inst., is known as Holy Thursday or Ascension Day. A festival of the Church which unfortunately in modern days of worldliness does not receive the consideration which the services of the Prayer Book (following Primitive Antiquity) obviously considered that it was justly entitled to.

A meeting of the officers and committee of the Church Women's Aid Society was held on Monday last.

ANIMALS TRIED FOR CRIMES.

In Olden Times the Lower Animals Were

tried for crimes. In these days of enlightened equity it is hard to realize that there was a time when the lower animals were prosecuted by law. As late as the sixteenth century rats, flies, bees and insects of various kinds were solemnly tried for depredations of which it was said they were guilty. It is recorded that a lot of rats tried to eat up the barley of the south of France. In the trial the rats were defended by Chassenoux, a great lawyer of the day, who actually won the case for the animals. In Scotland the case was the only animal exempt from capital punishment. Why it should have been exempt more than other animals is a mystery. Sometimes animals would be executed. Again it would be sympathized.

Mules have had their ears lopped off for wrongdoing. If the mule was very bad he ran the chance of being declared forfeit to the king, wherefrom it can be supposed that there was just a trifle of method in the governmental madness. It is stated that a horse of small blue which had been a pest in Mayence escaped punishment because of the extreme youth and small size. Once in France a number of horses were tried for devouring an infant. The verdict was that they should be hanged, drawn and quartered. The sentence was carried out.

Procedures of this nature were common as late as the time of Shakespeare. Towards the latter end of the sixteenth century the authorities took to a sense of the utter silliness of the whole affair, and by the year 1700 the practice had become very uncommon.

Ferrus Steel.

Thomas Doherty, of Sarnia, Ont., has discovered a new process for improving cast-iron.

The small amount of pig-iron which appears soft, like wrought iron, but not as strong. He writes:

I enclose you sample of what I name Ferrus steel. It is produced out from a top of an ordinary range. You can see the grain and sharp edges. It is so ductile that a strip 1 1/2 inch wide, 1/4 inch thick, 12 inches long can be wound around a 2-inch gas pipe without breaking; at the same time it is of great tensile strength, a 1/2 inch rod will support 100 lbs. long bearing on the points will carry a load of 600 lbs. without fracture. It is made from a mixture of 90 per cent common iron and 10 per cent No. 9 pig-iron. My process is to inject steam jet into the tuyers at cupola, which forms an oxide element in combustion (hydrogen gas) giving out to the iron, forming black oxide of iron on the iron at the point of charge, and it becomes red, magnetic oxide and it is so closely coherent and adherent that the absorption of sulphur from coke is entirely prohibited on its course down through the furnace.

The color of the gases is entirely changed. The molten metal is much more fluid, and almost free from gas or dross, and gives a casting of much smoother surface with a steady appearance. This process saves fully ten per cent. in fuel, and has several advantages of greater or lesser importance. It is stated here it is being patented in all countries. The days of common cast iron are nearly ended.

Scientific American.

Henry M. Stanley Under Pay.

According to the Belgian blue book on the subject of the purchase of the Congo Free State it appears that Henry M. Stanley receives from the King of Belgium two thousand pounds sterling a year when on duty in Africa and one thousand pounds sterling when in Europe. While in the service he must neither publish a book nor deliver a lecture without the King's permission.

Snake-bit of Herrington.

A curious custom still survives at Yarmouth, England, by which the town is, by law, compelled to supply "a hundred herring yearly to the sheriff of Norwich, to be used in twenty-four pies or pasties on the day of the Lord of the Manor of East Charlton, who is to convey them to the King." They are still sent to the Queen's clerk of the kitchen.

Ann Monday, a Carrick, county Bruce, farmer, has just had two fingers off in a straw cutter. Within twelve months his daughter had broken her arm, his son had died, he has lost $4,000 in a law suit, his wife met with a serious accident, and Monday himself, on a previous occasion was struck by a piece of timber, and never fully recovered. The poor man could hardly have been more unfortunate if his name had been Friday.

The whole number of immigrants arriving at Quebec, Halifax and Montreal during 1894, according to official report was 37,911, as compared with 37,447 during the previous year. Of these, 21,870 declared their intention of becoming residents of the Dominion of Canada, being over 3,000 less than for 1893. It will, of course, be remembered that the department has abandoned the plan of collecting statistics with regard to emigrant arrivals through the United States.

The report of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries contains a good deal of information of general interest. The total number of vessels remaining on the register books of the Dominion December 31, 1894, including old and new vessels, sailing vessels, steamers and barges, was 7,345, measuring 589,621 tons, a decrease in tonnage of 42,915, as compared with 1893. The number of steamers on the register book on that date was 1,040, with a gross tonnage of 240,006 tons. Assuming an average value to be $30 per ton, the value would be $72,001,800. The number of new vessels was 320, measuring 21,243 tons.

A Popular Pastor.
At its recent meeting the quarterly official board of the Methodist church extended an unanimous invitation to Rev. K. Taylor asking him to continue in Deseronto for a third year, and the Hay of Quinte conference will be asked to give the necessary permission. This is a becoming tribute to Mr. Taylor's ability as a successful pastor. He has performed the heavy duties devolving upon him with great zeal and prudence. His pulpit ministrations have been most acceptable and it is pleasing to know that all the departments of church work are in a healthy condition. People of all denominations will be glad to see Mr. Taylor spend a third year in Deseronto.

Flower Service.
The first "Flower" service held by the Methodist Sunday School took place last Sunday afternoon, and, as many remarked at the close of the proceedings, it was indeed "a rich treat."

The service was presided over by a number of teachers and scholars, and in addition parents and friends of the school were present in large numbers. The church has been suitably decorated for the occasion and scholars and visitors all were pretty flowers, this producing a pleasing effect. The singing by the infant class and the whole school was very hearty and effective. Rev. R. Taylor, the pastor, gave a most interesting and practical address. Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Napanee, contributed a song and afterwards addressed the audience for half an hour, his remarks being most happy and encouraging. Miss Alice Vandervort gave an appropriate recitation in very effective style. Superintendent A. A. Richardson asked for a collection, pressing the audience to contribute $20, the amount required to make the annual payment to the church building fund. He also elicited a hearty response, the sum of $20.05 being received, a sum in which the school must be congratulated.

New Canadian Flag.

The present Dominion flag has never contained itself to the public opinion. It contains the name of the different provinces grouped together in a manner which renders them undistinguishable and no one can tell to which province they belong. It is now wisely suggested to substitute for the present flag a new one, as for instance the maple leaf and beaver. The maple leaf should be adopted as it is generally recognized as a national symbol.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.
Messrs. Douglas, Rice & Co.,
Gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barber's Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. It got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I went to a very prominent doctor of this town and he told me I would be a few months before I could get rid of it. On a Sunday a neighbor came in to see me with about half an ounce of yellow Douglas' Egyptian Liniment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial; I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might also say that I only bathed my face once and that I consider I have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Liniment too highly for the value it has been to me. I think I declare to be true and correct.

I remain your truly,

THE EYE OF THE HOUSE.
People who keep their houses dark for fear of the sunlight, spoiling their carpets and furniture have no idea of the direct destroying influence of sunlight and air.

Recent experiments made in the Pasture Institute have shown that the sun's rays, two hours, while those exposed to the sun, the air being excluded, were alive after fifty hours of exposure.

One of the leading doctors of Naples made an interesting experiment with cholera bacilli. While he found them protected from the sun killed gnat flies in eighteen hours, as usual, those exposed to the sun, although not killed, were rendered entirely harmless.

As to the influence of sun and air on bacilli, it was ascertained that the oxygen of the air had a marked effect in the sun's rays, and that the oxygen supplied more from the sun's rays if the supply of oxygen was increased than if it was diminished.

Certain bacilli, too, which will undergo putrefaction in the dark will remain sweet and free from bacteria when exposed to the sun's rays. Air and sun are Nature's great purifiers.

The Union is an Article of Food
The value of the union as an article of food is constantly becoming better known. A couple of unions placed in the diet of a day's ration for a Spanish laborer and the healthy result with a raw union of two and an extra food life will be evident. In France a soup made from unions is universally in use after all violent exertions and during the influenza on the hill of the fair provided by the commissariat a little or more. Last and most conclusive testimony of its usefulness, and its value for its use, it is recommended for the completion. Under stances the statement of a continued union eaten immediately after a cup of black coffee taken immediately after unions and followed by a glass of champagne and myrrh removes all out from the mouth. It is valuable.

TAKEN FROM THE DARK LEAD OUT TO THE ENJOYMENT OF HEALTH!

Paine's Celery Compound Saves a Well-Known Norfolk County Farmer.
Completely Cured After Four of the Best Doctors had Failed.

Four men in Norfolk County, Ontario, are better or more favorably known than Mr. Joseph Robinson, of Nixon. This gentleman, some time ago, was in such an extremely alarming condition of health, that relatives and friends were fearful of results. Four skilled physicians did all for the sick man that could be done, but a cure was beyond their least efforts. Providentially, Mr. Robinson was induced to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, with the result that sickness and disease were banished, and a valuable life saved to the community. Mr. Robinson, who writes for the benefit of suffering men and women, has his statements vouched for by two well-known Methodist ministers, Rev. B. Clark, of Delhi, and Rev. D. Williams, of Nixon.
Mr. Robinson says:
"It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony to the ever increasing popularity of your preparations known as Paine's Celery Compound. It is now a year past since I had a severe attack of nervous prostration caused by chronic dyspepsia, and for a year I could not sleep a night. This condition of sleeplessness brought on delirium. I was attended by four of the best doctors of the country, and took a great quantity of medicine, but all failed to do me any good. Having been persuaded to read your books I bought a bottle of your Paine's Celery Compound; and after I had used four bottles the nervousness and dyspepsia left me, and I have done more work since than I have done for years past. I have highly recommended your Paine's Celery Compound to others, and I know of several in need who are now using it."

DOGS.
And why do people keep such lots of dogs themselves and go in such numbers to see other people's dogs? Because the dog is at once the success of a litter and the most successful character that the human race ever had. A good dog always gives us the feeling that we men and women are a sort of dogs. No other animal does anything of the kind. The dog treats us as an inferior, and horses will treat us as a dear friend, and a divinity. The dog, moreover, imparts something of his peculiar gaiety to us in a way that is irresistible. He makes his every turn of gait with his flattery; for he not only leaves his dinner untasted to walk with us, but the mere fact that we are apparently giving ourselves the pleasure of a walk raises him into such a delirium of delight that the sight of it puts all our dumps and blues to such reproach that we shake them off in very shame. And when we don't walk, but sit motionless at home, the dog curls up snugly at our feet and looks up now and then into our eyes and wags his tail with a sympathetic "Yes, there is solid reason for the fondness of men for dogs, and it will never come to an end until man and dog become very different things from what they are now."

At Kemptonville, on May 24th, Thomas Watt, nineteen years old, was killed by the bursting of a home-made cannon with which he was celebrating the Queen's birthday.

OPENING A SAFE.
A "careworn" and "burglar proof" safe, bought by a bank in Ellington, N. Y., was opened the other day by amateur burglars in the presence of a select group of bank directors and detectives. The makers of a rival safe offered to get into it in three hours. If they succeeded they were to allow $750 for it in substituting one of their own; if it took them more than three hours they would allow $1,500 for it. It was entered in two hours and fifty-seven minutes. Twenty-six small charges of nitro glycerine were exploded in it, although it was supposed to be impervious to explosives. None of the explosives made noise enough to attract attention to a burglar. It took three hours to open, or rather to cause inconvenience to the four men in the vault who were operating on the safe. The explosives peeled off the door plates by plate.

A CHAPTER ON MILLINERY.
The New Hats are to be Trimmed With Fur. The Saker Hats Up Again.

This is a continued story of extremely small spring bonnets (even for street wear) and extremely large summer hats. To the bonnets, the much "Dutch" affair, which is either a three-cornered frame or an oblong flat piece built up to suit the shape of the head and worn across the forehead, and the much "Dutch" affair, which is either a three-cornered frame or an oblong flat piece built up to suit the shape of the head and worn across the forehead, and the much "Dutch" affair, which is either a three-cornered frame or an oblong flat piece built up to suit the shape of the head and worn across the forehead.

Certain faces demand a high ornament or a simple, but the flat bonnet is really becoming to many a woman who would never wear her hat. She was compelled to change the manner of donning her hair, however; frizzes had to give way to a smooth part, with, perhaps, a suggestion of side waves.

The great care in the choosing of a bonnet cannot be taken that the side and back effects are as becoming as the front; women so often put upon their heads some frightful edifice, which to the full face is possible and to the profile and back of the head is simply hideous. The effort now seems to be to keep as far as possible from the natural outline of the head, and small bonnets are a great help thereto.

If there is one thing more certain than another about the new hats, it is that they are to be trimmed with lace. White lace on black hats, black lace on white hats, both black and white lace on all colored hats, and so on, without limit. The lace is to be used in such a way that it might almost be said that it is lace that is to be trimmed with hats. In general, however, the fitness of things is duly observed, and the lace is used as an article as they are fashionable.

The spring hat holds up again severely this affair, just as though it were a novel and unfamiliar feature in millinery. In its pristine state of plainness its shape is but little altered from last year, the crown, perhaps, being a little higher. As always, however, the trimmings are the most salient feature on the prettiest and most perfect specimens of headgear. It is the fancy for the time being to mix black and light shades in the crown of the crown of one color and the brim of another, or both crown and brim alike, but the latter faced with another colored Obituary.

Ezra Fringle received intelligence of the death of his cousin, Lady Hilda, of Ingolby, by Haliburton district, the head vent having occurred on the 27th inst. Deceased, who was about fifty-six years of age, was a native of North Maryburg, and was a brother of H. M. Hicks, M. A., formerly high school master at Trenton. He owned a fine farm at Ingolby. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn their loss.

Dents the Bay.
We had the great pleasure of a sail down the bay on the afternoon of the 24th on F. S. Rathbun's steam yacht Siesta which made her trial trip for the season on that day. Mr. Rathbun is just proud of his trim vessel which is fitted out in excellent style and with every modern convenience. Capt. John Bartley, who knows every nook and bar on the bay, is again in command this season. John Hayes is engineer and thinks no engine can compare with that of the Siesta. The bay was looking its very prettiest, Queen's weather prevailing. The eyes never wear and the scenery the delightful scenery from Deseronto to Glenora and Adolphustown, the prettiest part of the bay.

A few restful hours were spent ashore before making the return trip. Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun have our thanks for their more than generous hospitality during the day.

DESERONTO CEMETERY.

A visit to the Deseronto Cemetery shows that Mr. Rennie, the superintendent, has done a great deal of work in the way of improvement during the past two months. The different sections, the portion held by the Roman Catholic Congregation have been nearly all effected. Several new roads have been gravelled and the different walks are newly shown and the cemetery is in its best condition. Many of the lots have a softness, are decorated with flowers and present a most neat appearance. The large flower beds near the entrance and in the vicinity of the vault have been set out with rare flowers. The cemetery has far to surpass those of any other in the district. The sale of plots here and all the other improvements during the last year and the management will be justified in increasing the price at an early day. The view from the town and bay is very fine from all parts of the cemetery and a refreshing breeze is generally blowing in from the bay during the afternoon.

Attached to the cemetery is a large hotel, house, and Mr. Rennie has a large stock of flowers which he sells to owners of plots and to the public generally. All the annuals can be obtained, and there are asters, geraniums, foliages, fuchsias, primulas, cactuses, etc., and a number of young trees, such as the ash-leaved maple, etc. The prices are reasonable, and orders can be sent by postal card or otherwise. It is very pleasant to find that a telephone would be a great convenience at the cemetery.

COMPARATIVE VALUE OF MILLETS.

Common to the North & Middle America.

Common and German millet withstand dry weather better than Hungarian grass, and are more largely grown in the west, while Hungarian is generally preferred in the east. Common millet is the earliest of the three and may be recognized by its green, slender, poding head.

which is one or rugged at the base, while the dark-purple head of Hungarian capitata is more or less rounded. The leaves of capitata are smaller, the leaves of lanceolata are large, rough leaved, with capitata stems, generally, but one from each node. The leaves of capitata are usually recognized by the more numerous trichomes of the grain—the more the better—present more or less throughout the year. The need of first class southern-grown German seed is smaller and plumper than that of common seed. The seed of capitata is a copy right thing which has sometimes been called the name of "golden" millet. When this is the case, it is in the north and west it often falls to the thoroughly, and tends to become even a little more so. It is a little more like the resembles common millet. It is not so count some have supposed all common millet is a degenerated German millet and it is going to be a little more so. Some seem to substitute, intentionally or otherwise, the cheaper and generally more common seed of capitata for the German variety. Out of twenty-one samples obtained this year under the common millet and four mixed with the variety. The latter variety is the best for thin soils, or late sowing, or for early sowing to be followed by fall crops, or on good land where the full season can be given it, by far the largest yield of hay will be produced by the German millet. Common millet sown last year June 2nd, and cut for hay August 30th yielded 1½ tons per acre. German millet

Best Way to Set a Hen.
The accompanying illustration shows the very best way to set a hen. She has yet been discovered, so far as least as the writer has been concerned. The nest is made in a rooey box, with a cover. No one to one side of the box is a little slat or plate on top also—in which water and food are kept constantly. The hen can get out into the yard at any time, eat and drink, and has no temptation to wander away and let her eggs get cold. When several hens are sitting, a contrivance like this for each saves all bother of looking after them, to see that two do not get one nest, etc. You put food and water in the dishes—the hen “does the rest” American Agriculturist.

Mushrooms and Manure Heaps.—In rooms where the manure is piled up, the mushrooms are abundant, especially if cooked properly and eaten fresh. Even as produced artificially in the manure heap, they are very good. Some, as is well known, says the Lancet (London), mushrooms belong to the same family as the ergot, the cause of ergotism, and they grow and reproduce themselves with remarkable rapidity when sown in manure. In decomposing manure, the mushrooms grow to advantage in this fact to waste mushrooms on manure heaps that is to say, not of ordinary manure, but of manure that has been rotted off of every description of manure gathered together in large towns and delivered to suburban and other municipalities by horse and other manure carts, or by the horse-drawn wagon.

Now, plants take up into themselves very soft, modified, on which they grow, the ergot, and the mushrooms are a sort select from it those parts which are are al to assimilate. But the arrangement of the "cap" of the mushroom enables it also to absorb the vapor of manure, which is a dangerous poison to man and other animals. Thus the seeds of hundreds of radiating plates of which they principally consist are in practice little better than traps for the catch and retaining of more deadly poisons.

Timothy and Clover Compared.

Timothy and clover, says the New York Times, have been a standard mixture for cattle and pasture after it, and in some calities, as where the summers are comparatively cool, it does very well. In where the summer heat is greater, it either does not mature at all, or timely, and the clover is cut before the clover has had time to mature. Thus it is better to use an earlier grade of mower than one that will cut late in the season. In addition for cutting at the same time the clover is. Another advantage of the clover is that it is cut before it has had time to mature, and after the clover has run out it will occupy the land for many months. The clover is cut by a machine, and the management, as for instance, frequent top dressing with manure, and some other things, are not necessary. The harvesting being done after the minimum has been spent, so that the seed is covered and the manure broken and spread over the seed at the same time.

Swine are Large Animals.

Where swine are kept in large numbers they are very likely to be confined in pens, and the pens are made of iron bars, wire mesh and pure iron. One who recently visited a distillery where a great lot of hogs were raised, and where the hogs were fed on products, gave a description of the pens of the "black hogs" of California. The pens were made of iron bars, and the swine, and the visitor would have found but for speedy exit. This was an exceptional condition, but in all cases when the milk was not fresh and the animals there must have been or less taint to the meat, even if disease does not appear. But hogs so developed are very liable to be infested with some dangerous diseases and parasites, and their carcasses are liable to rot and unfit to health. The swine should be fed as pure food as other animals, and all their conditions recognized sanitary laws.

Cautions for Butter Producers.

Pure water is absolutely necessary, and pastures must be kept free of noxious weeds.

When the milking in a quiet place and make no noise during the work. If in a stable, have it free from odors.

It is necessary that you be able to control the temperature while ripening

70,000,000 CIGARETS.

A Montreal dispatch states that 70,000,000 cigarettes were consumed in Canada last year.

The statement is alarming. It means that the average consumption for each male over fifteen years of age was about fifty. When allowance is made for those who never smoke cigarettes at all an estimate can be formed of the enormous number of those paper-wrapped concoctions that must be smoked by those who do use tobacco in this form.

It may not be considered expedient to prohibit the use of cigarettes altogether, but certainly the tax on them should be made high enough to greatly restrict. Habitual smoking causes the most serious injury to the constitution of those who indulge to excess in it.—Toronto Daily News.

A DREADFUL DISEASE CURED.

Messrs. Douglas Bro. & Co.: Gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in offering you testimonial on the cure of Barber's Itch. For over three weeks my face was nothing but a mass of sores, and it was still getting worse. I got so bad that I was ashamed to go out on the street. I went to a very prominent doctor of this town and he told me it would be a few months before I could get rid of it. On a Sunday a neighbor came in to see me about half an ounce of your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment and requested me to try it. I thought I would give it a trial; I put it on my face that same day, and inside of three days my face was as smooth as ever it was. I might as well say that I only bled my face and that I could not have a permanent cure. I cannot recommend your Liniment too highly for the value it has been to me. This I declare to be true and correct. I remain yours, C. A. McVinch, Palmer, Temworth, 10th May, 1893.

CRICKET MATCH.

The first cricket match of the season in the district was played in the Queen's birthday on the grounds of the Deseronto Cricket Club, adjoining the High School. The contesting eleven represented the Royal Military College, Kingston, and the Deseronto Club. The weather was superb and the game was witnessed by a very large number of spectators who took the greatest interest in the proceedings. Deseronto went first to bat and ran a score of 14, which Macled contributed 24 and Calhane 14, the only two making double figures. The Cadets followed and made 62, including 38, Sherwood contributing 10, Wilby 14, Smith 13 and Stair 11. The game, it will be remembered, was a time game and when they had run up 90 called the game without waiting to increase the score. Of this the ever reliable Macled contributed 28, Crooke 17, Cole 11, Allen 10. The Royal Military College then went in for their second innings and made 62, which if they were to win the game. But the face were inopportunely as they were quickly retired for 17 of which 13 was the only double figure. Deseronto was thus declared victorious by fourteen runs with a man to spare. The score was as follows:—

THE GAME WAS MOST INTERESTING FROM START TO FINISH.

Many visitors came from Napanee to witness the match.

The visitors were a most gentlemanly set of young men. Will be glad to see them back in Deseronto at any time.

Macled bowled exceedingly well for Deseronto; Uniaque trundled well for the visitors.

Macled batted in splendid style and carried off the honors of the day. He ran up 24 in the first inning and 28 in the second, making a total of 52.

Mac had always that way of doing things. Cole not out in the second innings had 11 to his credit; good for so many more.

Stair for 11 of Deseronto, and Crooke for 17, were the only other batsmen who did some runs. Wilby made 14 in the first innings.

It would be well if some of the spectators, old and young in this respect, would discontinue the rather ill-mannered practice of "crying" visiting teams. Only a few offenders in this way, but it is unpleasant to spectators.

Macled has probably played his last ball with the Deseronto team. He left for Kingston on Friday night.

Messrs Bedford and Kirkpatrick were most efficient umpires.

The victory of Deseronto is more wonderful when it is considered that they had no practice before the match.

Deseronto cricketers should make up their minds to steady and careful practice if they are to maintain their supremacy.

Crooke ran up the neat score of 19 in the second innings for Deseronto. Good.

Capt. Allum was not in his usual good form but he contributed 15 runs to the grand total.

Sherwood did well for the College in the first innings, 19 good runs standing to his credit.

Calhane batted very well, his grand total in 18, of which 14 was in the first inning.

One of the revolutions of the Queen's reign has been in connection with the distribution of honours. We have taken special care in selecting goods for this department. Call and inspect them when in Napanee or Belleville. Price range from 80c upwards, an extra quality shoe for $1.00.
